ALLIED SLUG DESPERATE NAZIS BACKWARD

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

"These are the days of abnormal wages, and a surprisingly small number of those drawing the high wages are laying anything by for a rainy day," said a local man, who had been studying the situation and obtained his information first hand. We were talking about the unusual situation at present.

"Even kids are drawing unheard-of wages for their work, and a great many of the youngsters are working during the national emergency," he continued.

"This same business man spoke words of warning to the effect that possibly within a surprisingly short time, when the huge demand for war materials will fall off greatly with the defeat of Germany, the labor situation may be reversed, and there may be two persons for every job instead of two jobs for every person."

"Then will be the time that some of the money now being made at abnormally high wages would be appreciated and used to advantage," said the man.

He pointed to the boom during and following World War No. 1 and the huge number of persons thrown out of work when the change in economic conditions took place.

"Demand for American goods, on the part of Americans and the world generally will furnish a great deal of employment, but I do not believe the demand will absorb anything like all of the labor now employed" is the way the man sizes up the situation immediately after the war.

Harold Bell Wright, famous author, died in California a few days ago at the age of 72 years, after having written several of the leading pieces of fiction of his day.

That reminds me that the author was in this city visiting friends (I do not recall their names at present) and gave a very interesting address about his writings, before the high school students here.

While his greatest novel was "The Winning of Barbara Worth", 7,000,000 copies of which were sold, a great many Fayette countians will recall "The Shepherd of the Hills" before they do his most successful novel.

"The Shepherd of the Hills" was written in 1907 amid the picturesque Ozark Mountains in Missouri, where he found plenty of local color for his book. Three years ago while passing through the Ozarks near where the book was written, I halted for a picture of a cabin at the roadside, with one goat half way in the door, another going up the steps to enter the house, and a third walking around the cabin en route to join the folks inside. I did not notice it at the time, but the picture showed a woman peeping out of a window to see what was going on.

Others of his most famous books include: "The Calling of Dan Matthews", "The Recreation of Bryan Kent", (1917); "When a Man's a Man", (1916); "Eyes of the World", "The Virginia", "That Printer of Udell's", (1920); "God and the Grocerman", (1942); "The Man Who Went Away", (1942).

At Calxico on the California-Mexico border is a modern hotel known as "The Barbara Worth Hotel", and it is noted for its beautiful murals depicting scenes from the book, which are worth going a long distance to see.

PATRIOTISM LACKING HERE, DECLARATION

Men Overseas Think Not Enough, Rickenbacker Says

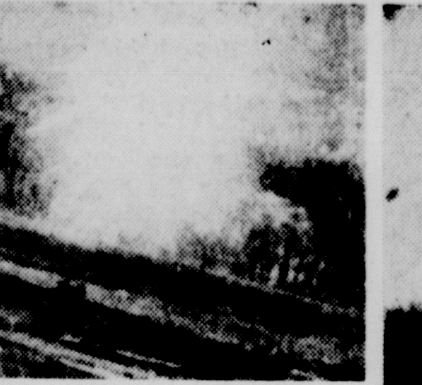

Kansas City, May 31.—(AP)—Men overseas believe there isn't enough patriotism on the home front, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker declares, and in his opinion "there is justification" for their belief.

"Most of us are not awake to our obligations and responsibilities," he told 10,000 yesterday at a Memorial Day service sponsored by the American War Dads.

"This will be a long war," Rickenbacker said. "When you're asked to buy a bond in the Fifth War Loan, remember it's a privilege, and remember, too, that you're going to be asked to buy bonds in the sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth and ten War Loans."

NEW ERA DAWNS IN U. S. TAXATION

Report on Plane Production And War Contract Cutback Hold Capital Interest

WASHINGTON, May 31.—(AP)—When United States land forces make their assault on Europe, they will hit Hitler's empire with a plane production output 4 to 1 ahead of Germany and more than 7 to 1 ahead of Japan. A joint report by the War Production Board today showed that this country has turned out 171,257 planes since Pearl Harbor and will make 100,000 planes this year alone. In the first four months of this year, the United States built an average of one plane every five minutes around the clock, excluding Sundays.

New Era of Taxation

America entered today a new era of taxation—an age promising an end to the great confusion of income tax returns for 50,000,000 people—and congressional tax leaders turned confidently toward extending simplification to corporate tax structures.

The new day dawned for taxpayers after President Roosevelt signed into law the tax streamliner that Congress sent to him with its unanimous approval.

Answering the outcry against the intricacy of computing income liability to the government, the new law completely reshuffles the income tax structure, relieving 30,000,000 of any further tax computations and simplifying the filing process for the 20,000,000 others—at the same time keeping actual tax burdens near their present levels for most taxpayers.

REVOLUTIONISTS TAKE OVER ECUADOR NOW

Military Control To Stay Until President Is Back

QUITO, Ecuador, May 31.—(AP)—Gen. Luis Larrea Alba, representing the army and the revolutionary vanguard party, took over leadership last night of the Ecuadorian provisional government, which has announced it will retain control until the return of Dr. Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra, former president who has been in exile.

The military government was set up two days ago after revolutionaries in a bloody coup at Guayaquil forced the resignation of President Carlos Arroyo Del Rio. The government has invited Velasco Ibarra to return from his exile in Colombia and he is reported en route.

The provisional government issued a statement pledging "repression of all Nazi-Fascist activities and other anti-Democratic activities which endanger the nation and the continent."

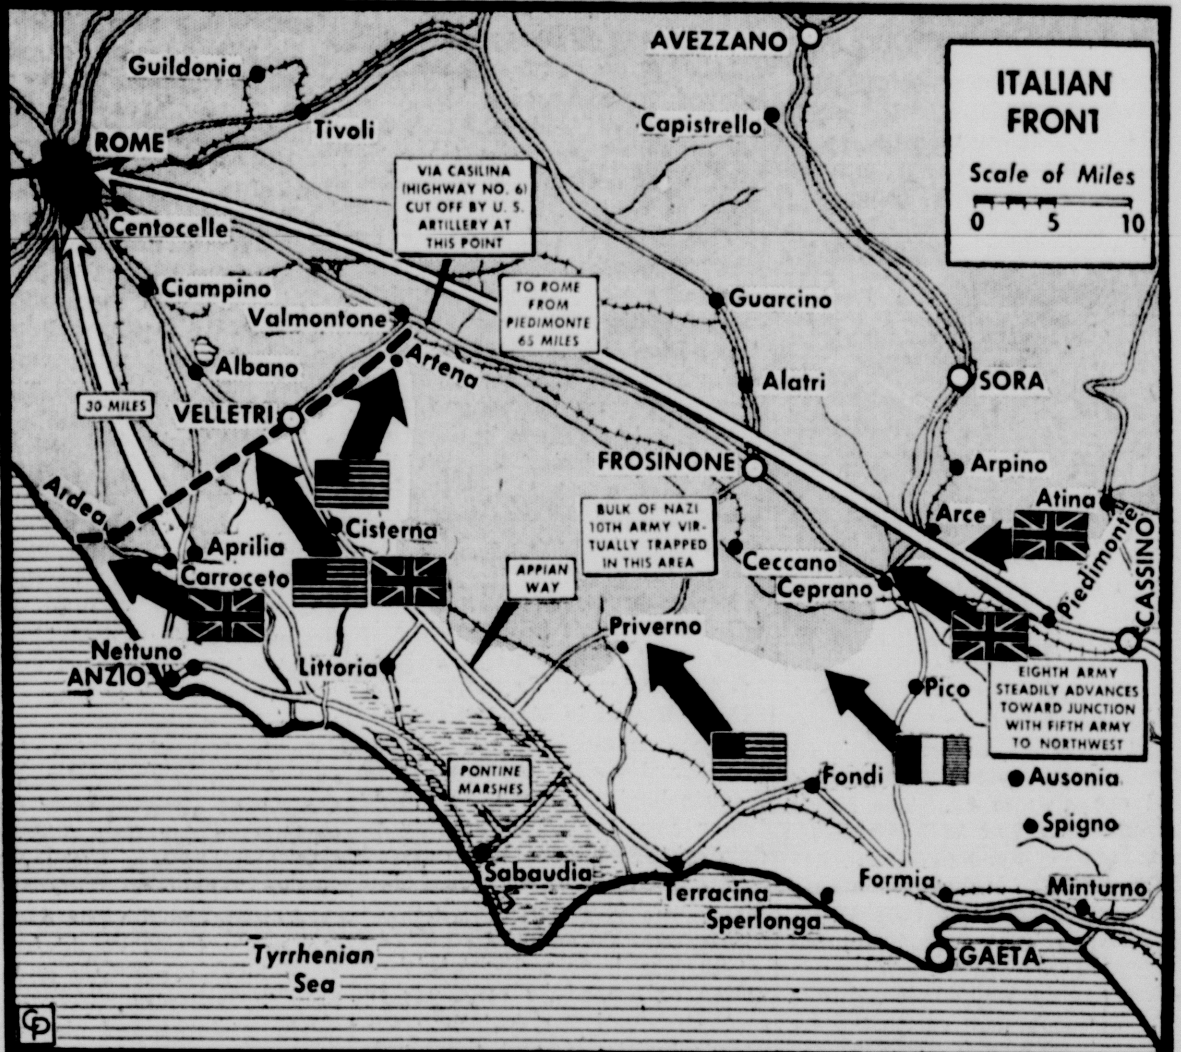

Pre-war Financial Policy Condemned By Bricker

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 31.—(AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker, who is seeking the Republican presidential nomination, says that in order to be a powerful influence in world affairs the United States must "build our own house upon the solid rock of financial solvency, equity and justice."

The Ohio governor told the 136th Governors' Conference last night that "in my judgment, the pre-war federal policy of spend, waste, borrow and tax will wreck American economy if continued in the post-war period."

Saying that the federal budget should be balanced "at the earliest possible date," he recommended that Congress, the states

ITALY'S GREAT HIGHWAY, the Via Cassia, stands to be the German 10th Army's only escape route, and with the Eighth Army's capture of Ceprano and the Fifth Army's capture of Ardea, the prospect of disaster for eight Nazi divisions looms. Gunfire from American artillery in daylight and continuing bombardment at night has established an almost total round-the-clock blockade of the highway, making it impossible for German traffic to move.

Shipyard Workers Held On War Racket Charges

BOSTON, May 31.—(AP)—Squads of FBI agents and deputy U. S. marshals today took 100 Bethlehem-Hingham shipyard piece work welders and counters into federal custody on charges of conspiring to defraud the government, according to E. A. Soucy, Boston FBI chief.

Following an extensive FBI investigation at the shipyard with the co-operation of officials, the arrests were authorized by U. S. Attorney Edmund J. Brandon. Authorities in Washington said more than 100 finally would be charged.

The probe at the yard disclosed, according to Soucy, the most extensive war fraud racket of its type uncovered by the FBI during the current national emergency.

The government alleged the counters agreed with the welders to record false credits for extra production.

The FBI said that the welders, in return for the dishonest services of the counters, agreed to kick back a share of their weekly salary checks which would include the amounts fraudulently obtained for work not done.

In some cases, according to Soucy, individual counters received as high as $75 a week extra for their manipulation.

The counters, it was explained, are responsible for measuring and recording each day on tally slips the quantity of welding performed by each worker in the sections assigned to them.

The arrested shipyard workers, in custody of U. S. Marshal J. Henry Goguen, were scheduled to appear before a U. S. Commissioner in the federal building today.

The workers charged with conspiracy to defraud the government, the FBI said, faced a maximum penalty of two years imprisonment and $10,000 fine on each charge while those charged with actually causing the false claims to be presented could receive as high as 10 years and $10,000 fine for each violation.

LARGEST WAC CONTINGENT HAS ARRIVED IN NAPLES

NAPLES, May 31.—(AP)—The largest contingent of WACS ever sent to the Mediterranean Theater—32 officers and 357 enlisted women—has arrived in Naples direct from the United States.

The new arrivals—half of whom are scheduled to continue on to stations in the middle east, brought the WACS' strength in the Mediterranean to nearly 3,000.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—(AP)—The Rev. Chester Quear, 45, of nearby Gadenhutton was free today under $1,000 bond after having been arrested yesterday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 17-year-old girl member of his parish, Prosecutor Ralph Finley reported.

BREAD SUPPLY DWINDLES AS DRIVERS STRIKE ON

CINCINNATI, May 31.—(AP)—The supply of bread in grocery stores dwindled further today as 400 bakery driver-salesmen and supervisors continued their work stoppage in protest against action by 12 Cincinnati bakeries and one in Hamilton in appealing a war labor board order for a wage increase.

323 MEET VIOLENT DEATH IN NATION DURING HOLIDAY

(By the Associated Press)

A four-day Memorial Day holiday, bringing the season's first heavy traffic to the country's highways and drawing thousands to summer's outing places, resulted in at least 323 violent deaths, an Associated Press survey disclosed today.

The toll on the highways for the four days was far below the National Safety Council's estimate of 250, latest figures showing 98 persons lost their lives in traffic mishaps, with a similar number of drownings reported. Other violent deaths totaled at least 127, including airplane crashes, which numbered 25 in California and 10 in Tennessee, shootings, fires, stabbings, electrocution and other mishaps.

The violent death toll surpassed by almost 100 the 1943 total of 239 deaths for the three-day holiday last year but was below the average peacetime Memorial Day count of 400 deaths. The Safety Council's estimate of 250 traffic fatalities was for a corresponding four-day period in May.

No loss of life—not even a serious accident, was reported—marked the holiday in Fayette County, California, with 42 deaths by violence, led the nation. In addition to the 25 persons killed in plane crashes, there were eight traffic fatalities, six drownings, and one death each by shooting, electrocution and tractor accident.

New York's 24 total ranked second largest, while Illinois reported 21. Twelve states did not report a single violent death.

In Ohio, five died in traffic accidents and eight were drowned.

Tougher Resistance Put up by Japs in New Guinea Battle

Fierce Fighting Rages and Yan k Progress on Biak Island Is Slowed by Fanatical Enemy in Caves and Trees—U. S. Destroyers and Planes Blast Positions

(By the Associated Press)

In new bursts of power the Japanese are strongly resisting Americans invading Biak Island off New Guinea and are developing swiftly their offensive to seize China's Hankow-Canton Railway, Allied announcements revealed today.

The two enemy forces on these fronts 2,500 miles apart had the same objective—to prevent Allied exploitation of new bases nearer Japan.

Offering the fiercest resistance Gen. Douglas MacArthur has met in month, the Japanese threw tanks, planes and first-class troops into the battle for Mokmer Air-drome on Biak, which is only 880 miles from the Philippines. They crouched in caves and behind tree-protected ridges. Heavy rifle, machinegun, mortar and artillery fire pinned down MacArthur's Sixth Army troops two miles from the field.

Americans Ambushed

The Americans countered with destroyer bombardment, planes, tanks and infantry. Associated Press war correspondent, Spencer Davis, in an exclusive story from Biak, dated Monday, told how the enemy virtually ambushed two American battalions which suffered severe casualties. In the general fighting the Japanese suffered heavily too.

In the southwest Pacific's first tank battle, Davis reported, the enemy attacked with 30 tanks. American Shermans engaged and

YANK FLIER LYNCHED BY MOB IN GERMANY SAYS BERLIN REPORT

STOCKHOLM, May 31.—(AP)—A purported eyewitness account of the lynching of an American aviator near a German village Monday was sent from Berlin today to the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet by correspondent Helge Granberg.

(A German broadcast said one Allied pilot was "lynched" by villagers in central Germany after "a large group of civilians who were on their way to church" were strafed by low flying aircraft. The broadcast denied a story published yesterday by Aftonbladet from its Berlin correspondent that five American airmen had been "lynched" in Germany "by agitated people." There was no confirmation of any of the stories of lynchings.)

Aftonbladet's story today, which came through German censorship from correspondent Granberg, said the American flier lynched Monday was assaulted by an infuriated crowd of villagers who struck him with their weapons until he was lying dead in his blood.

Aftonbladet's dispatch did not say whether the aviator was one of the five airmen reported in yesterday's story as having been lynched.

The story followed closely the pattern of propaganda groundwork laid by Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels last week. The lack of details regarding circumstances of the eyewitness interview indicated the account should be treated with the greatest reserve.

TOLEDO FACES SHORTAGE OF BREAD WITH STRIKE

TOLEDO, O., May 31.—(AP)—Toledo was faced with a bread shortage today when 128 drivers of four of Toledo's largest bakeries went out on strike in protest against delay of the Regional War Labor Board in handling a case that Union agents said had been before the board since last November.

Edward Hausmeyer, business agent of the Bakers, Drivers and Salesmen Union, AFL, said he had notified bakeries Monday night of the impending strike.

Command headquarters here announced yesterday that the prisoners of the Prisoner of War Branch, most of whom are held at Camp Perry, Ohio, and Camp Atterbury, Ind., would be available for gardening and food processing during the peak months of August, September and October.

Maj. Donald M. McLeod, chief of the Prisoner of War Branch, said, however, the prisoners could only work within a 60-mile radius of their camp inasmuch as they are not allowed to be absent from the stockade for more than 12 hours at a time.

Girl, Father and Brothers in Jail Accused Of May 18 Killing Of 'Date'

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 31.—(AP)—A 17-year-old girl who had told officers a lurid story of seeing her "date" shot and killed and of being raped four times by the killer was brought from her home in Tullahoma and jailed here last night, along with her father and two brothers.

State Highway Patrol Division Chief W. C. O'Lee said the girl, Ruth Yates, was held as a material witness in the gunshot slaying May 18 of James Robert Sherrill, 17-year-old high school senior, while her father, Roy Yates, and two brothers, Dennis and Harold Yates, were charged with the murder of Sherrill.

Miss Yates told officers she was the youth's date for the evening, they had gone to a movie, and were near Tullahoma when suddenly a shot blasted out and young Sherrill slumped through the partially opened car door to the roadway.

She said the killer held her captive six hours, drove her about Coffee County in the dead youth's car, raped her four times, and finally toward dawn she was forced to help lift the body from the car and assist in hiding it in bushes on an abandoned road.

The next morning she led off-

DIN OF BATTLE GROWING LOUDER IN ROME DAILY

American Bombers Return To Europe as People Told How They Can Help Invasion

(By the Associated Press)

Britons crawled through dense minefields to a point just south of Pescara Nuova, 14 miles from Rome today as the Fifth Army rumbled repeatedly at "strong enemy resistance" in the 25-mile last ditch defense of the Italian capital from Valmontone to the sea.

"It is now clear that the enemy's intent is to hold this line at all costs," the Naples communiqué said. "Troops of the Eighth Army are moving steadily forward beyond the Liri River, against strong enemy rear guards who are making the utmost use of demolitions to delay our advance. The towns of Alfedena, Fontana, Strangolagalli, Pofi, Ceccano and Arpino have been occupied."

West of Velletri, where the Germans said "dramatic street fighting" was in progress, the Allies inched within six miles of Castel Gandolfo, summer home of the Pope. The loss of Velletri, 16 miles southeast of the capital, would cripple seriously the German effort to fight for Rome on the present front, despite the enemy's willingness to gamble all available reserves and war gear.

Bombers Hit Europe

As the din of approaching battle grew louder in Rome, U. S. heavy bombers conveyed by 1,200 fighters attacked German rail yards at Hamm, Osnabruck, Schweerte southeast of Dortmund and Soest, southeast of Hamm. An air base was bombed near Mulhouse, southern anchor of the former French Maginot line.

The Rome line was a powerful shield of steel and stone and dispatches from headquarters said only a mighty drive would split it. Every available enemy soldier was reported committed to the defenses on either side of the Alban hills. The savage resistance appeared to be covering the retreat of the German Tenth Army on the Allied right. The Germans were paying a heavy price in casualties but so were the Allies, and no large group of the enemy forces were trapped.

Near the Rome shoreline, the British captured Ardella, 2½ miles southeast of Campo Leminio, coastal anchor of the Rome line. They worked fiercely into L'Americano, 18 miles below the mouth of the Tiber. Americans fought into the outskirts of Villa Crocetta, just southeast of bulwarked Lanuvium in the slopes of the Alban hill mass.

PRICE FIXING CHARGE FACES 16 BIG MILLS

Action Follows Anti-trust Investigations

CHICAGO, May 31.—(AP)—Sixteen flour milling corporations, 11 of their executives and their national trade association were summoned into federal court today for trial on charges of conspiring to fix prices on packaged flour for home use.

The charges grew out of an extensive inquiry by the government's anti-trust division. The indictment was returned March 24, 1943, and the defendants pleaded innocent June 15.

Members of the defendant trade association, The Millers National Federation, control 81 percent of the 45,000,000 barrels of flour sold annually in the United States in packaged form for household use, the indictment alleged.

The government charged the federation, served as a clearing house for price-fixing agreements among the defendants and that these agreements—more than doubled bulk prices charged by millers for sales of flour in cer-

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The Germans themselves have taken the initiative on the eastern front by making a heavy attack which has dented the Russian line north of Iasi, Romania.

While the full import of this move isn't yet apparent, it is significant as showing the importance Hitler attaches to the Balkans as the southeastern shield for his fortress Europe. Time will tell whether it's a big scale assault to forestall the impending Red offensive. Moscow thinks it is merely to disrupt Russian troop concentrations.

The Nazi attack is particularly interesting since it comes on the heels of further moves by Hitler to compel Bulgaria to knuckle under. He is reported to have slammed his mailed fist down on the Sofia government's council table and demanded not only full war aid but severance of diplomatic relations with Moscow.

That puts Bulgaria on a tough spot and has increased the tension in an already taut Balkans, for Moscow more than once has warned Sofia to quit catering to the Nazi brigand. Moreover we have in Bulgaria the peculiar situation of a pro-Nazi government trying to help Hitler, while a great majority of the people have turned thumbs down on Germany and are demanding cooperation with their Slavic brothers, the Russians.

Things cannot continue long like that without a further upheaval in this cockpit of southeastern Europe. This could be the emergency which would force a reluctant Turkey to reconsider whether it should join the Allies in the war.

Only last week Russia was reported to have served Bulgaria with an ultimatum—either to break with Hitler or suffer severance of diplomatic relations with the Soviet. Again on Monday the Moscow radio, quoting accusations from an article in the Soviet periodical "War and the working class," charged the Sofia government with hostility toward the Soviet and with aiding Germany.

It's noteworthy that this article made a distinction between the Bulgarian government and the Bulgarian people. There have been many signs that the people might revolt and overthrow the government.

A break between Russia and Bulgaria might change the complexion of Turkey's position of neutrality. I think Ankara would be governed largely by an "if" and that would be Russia's wishes in the matter.

The Turks wouldn't want to offend their mighty neighbor, who most certainly will emerge from the war as the dominant power in that part of the world. They wouldn't be likely to come into the war if Russia preferred that they stay out—and she might for she regards the Balkans as her sphere of influence.

However, by the same token, an invitation from Moscow to join the Allies, especially a pressing invitation, might bring Turkey into the fray, since she wouldn't be averse to taking a whack at the quarrelsome Bulgars. I think, though, that we should be cautious in conclusions about Turkey.

CIO IS ACCUSED OF VIOLATIONS OF HATCH ACT

Senatorial Investigation of Illegal Politics Is Sought By GOP Boss

(By the Associated Press)

A senatorial investigation of the CIO political action committee was demanded today by Senator Butler (R-Neb) as a result of charges by Harrison E. Spangler, Republican national chairman, that the union organization is guilty of "flagrant and bold violation" of the corrupt practices and Hatch acts.

Butler told a reporter he would lay before the Senate elections committee Spangler's charges that the CIO group has breached a corrupt practices provision outlawing contributions by labor organizations toward election of federal officers and a Hatch act ban against contributions in excess of $5,000 by any committee, association, corporation or other agency.

The CIO was a factor in two Democratic primary elections in Alabama yesterday. One of its reported targets, Rep. John Newsum of the ninth district, lost his race for renomination; another, Rep. Carter Manasco of the seventh district, stayed in the lead through slowly accumulating returns.

Some Congress members have credited the CIO committee with playing a part in the defeats of Reps. Starnes (D-Ala) and Costello (D-Calif), members of the House committee on un-American activities, and in the decision of Chairman Dies (D-Tex) not to run for renomination. Its work was likewise seen in helping Wayne L. Morse, former member of the War Labor Board, defeat Senator Holman (R-Ore) for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Spangler wrote Attorney General Biddle asking whether anti-Roosevelt groups legally could follow the course of the CIO committee, asserting that Biddle's "reasons for permitting such a clear violation of the law which you are under oath to enforce have not been made plain."

Biddle ruled recently that the CIO Political Action Committee's activities were legal. Meanwhile, Chairman Green (D-RI) said the Senate campaign expenditures committee would look into the CIO question only if it received a formal complaint which a majority of members believes justifies investigation.

ELM DISEASE IS KILLING TREES

Heavy Infestation in Ross and Pickaway Counties

Reports of the spread of the "Dutch Elm Disease" indicate that within a few years most of the elm trees in this part of Ohio may be struck by the blight and destroyed.

A great many of the elm trees in parts of Pickaway and Ross counties have already fallen prey to ravages of the disease, and it seems that borers attack the trees and cause them to die.

In some places federal agents have conducted investigations, and brought to light large numbers of borers taken from the trees after the trees have died.

So far little of the disease has appeared in this area, but reports indicate that it is just as deadly as the blight that wiped out chestnut trees throughout the nation during recent years.

Many fine elm trees used for shade have fallen victim to the blight in various parts of Ohio. White elms alone seem to be attacked by the blight, or insects.

and local governments cooperate to set up a "stable" tax system without "overlapping." He asserted "our tax structure now is only a planless patchwork held together by nothing more substantial than political expediency."

Bricker maintained that balancing the federal budget would give more jobs to returning soldiers "than all the made-work the government could possibly plan."

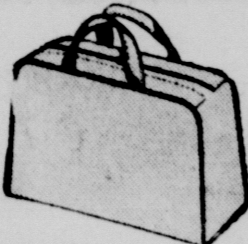

He recommended authorization of local taxing of federal owned property, saying that the property tax has been "reduced severely by the purchase of more and more land by the federal government."

He urged that federal expenditures be "limited to absolutely essential items" and opposed payment of federal subsidies, criticizing recent federal proposals to subsidize public schools. "That is what Hitler did in Germany," he said. "I am opposed to the dictation of our educational policies from Washington."

FIVE ORGANIZATIONS IN JEFF MEMORIAL

R. M. Winegardner Is Speaker At Services There

The American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary, D.A.R., Boy Scouts and the K. of P. lodge of Jeffersonville all participated in Memorial Day ceremonies in Jeffersonville Tuesday.

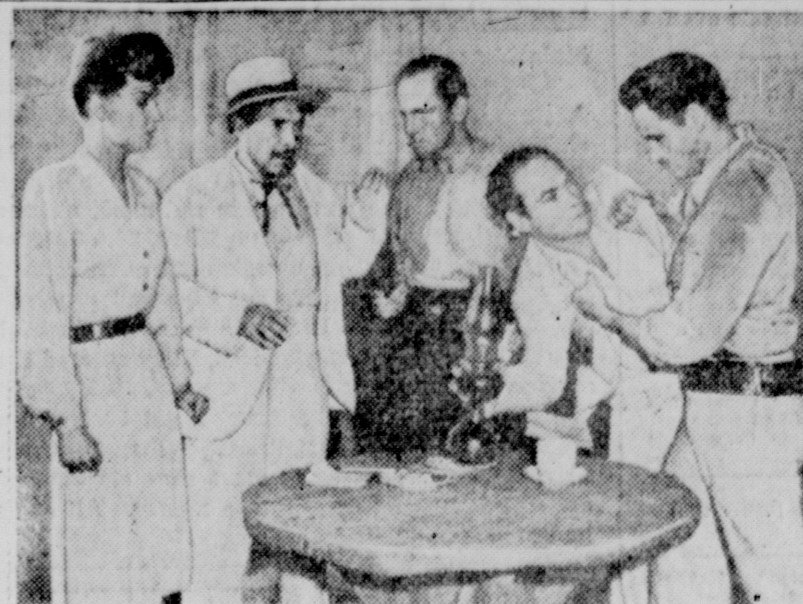

The parade, led by the high school band, marched to the old cemetery where services were conducted at 10:45 A.M. The line of march then proceeded to the new Fairview cemetery where another service was held on the memorial plot around a large white cross, symbol of the many rows of white crosses marking the graves of American soldiers overseas.

Rev. W. S. Alexander led the group in prayer, the regent of the D.A.R. placed an evergreen wreath at the foot of the cross. The Legion and the auxiliary placed a large basket of flowers on the cross in memory of all the soldier dead. Lee Draper, post commander and Mrs. O. L. Wiseman, auxiliary president, were in charge of this part of the services.

After ritualistic ceremonies by the K. of P. lodge, R. M. Winegardner, Washington C. H. attorney, gave the Memorial Day address.

A firing squad salute was directed by Charles Seibert. Caroline Smith played taps. The high school band was directed by Raymond Stuckey in the absence of the school music supervisor, Mrs. Elizabeth Dunkle.

Official Chiseling
If there is one thing that the American people resent it is evidence of chiseling and graft on the part of officials who are entrusted with carrying on the various rationing programs, or any of the other things that have to do with our war effort. The discovery of black market scandals in which OPA employees have been concerned, justly infuriates many people who have honestly and conscientiously tried to keep within the bounds prescribed by wartime rationing conditions. It has meant considerable sacrifice of normal living conditions to many who have not complained.

Since OPA is the machinery through which Americans have been able to get their fair share of necessities such as food, shoes, fuel oil and gasoline, the public has a right to expect square dealing on the part of those who have control of the rationing operations. A certain small percentage of illicit operations may seem inevitable, people being as they are, with grafters always ready to take advantage of other people's difficulties. It is to be expected that a few ignorant, weak or grasping citizens are easily tempted. But to find chiselers and thieves inside the OPA itself enrages decent citizens. There ought to be quick and thorough investigation of such actions and prompt punishment for the guilty. There should be a thorough house-cleaning of petty chiselers and big grafters alike.

It should be pointed out, however, that people have no right to think all OPA officials or all rationing boards are bad because there have been a certain number of scandals exposed.

Most board members and office employees are decent and upright. It is not the fault of your friend and neighbor in the OPA office that some racketeer has frightened a greedy weakling into stealing coupons. The remarkable part of the whole rationing business is that there has been so little graft reported. OPA has been awkward, clumsy, often mistaken, but on the whole pretty decent.

The dishonest must be cleaned out, thoroughly and quickly. It is absolutely necessary that Americans be able to trust their rationing offices.

The Crucial Morale Test
One of the strangest and most crucial battles in the history of warfare is going on inside Germany. The opposing "armies" are Allied bombs and the Nazi military and secret police. The "battlefield" is the German people. The prize of victory is their morale.

This is made clear in a Swiss newspaper story by a man who returned home in March after spending months in Germany and undergoing 60 air attacks in Berlin. Even before the pulverizing attacks of the last six weeks, he reported that 70 or 80 percent of the Nazi's capital's factories were destroyed or damaged. He also disclosed that residential bombing had knocked out tens of thousands of small home

Male Nurse Nurses Equal Rights for Man
FIFTH ARMY ANZIO BEACHHEAD, Italy.—A six foot, bass-voiced, hairy chested sergeant claimed the cause of equal rights for men in the Army Nursing Corps.
"Don't get me wrong—I'm not mad at the girls," grinned Alfred Eugene Riley, 24, of Hernando, Miss., "but being a registered nurse myself I'd like to see male nurses get a break."
After having worked for a year as industrial hospital nursing superintendent, Riley entered the service.
"When I joined the Army I got 50 bucks a month as a private," said Riley. "When my three sisters were inducted as nurses they started out as second lieutenants at $180 a month. All of us had the same qualifications."

Hints on Etiquette
There are pleasant things that you can honestly say to people about themselves if you look for them. Never criticize another unless it is really necessary. Try to make them feel bigger, better, more important. That is tact.

workshops serving armament production. But of equal military importance is his story of the terror of Germany's war-sick people—terror of the bombs and of the Gestapo.

"Fifty percent of the German population is already demoralized," he writes. "It is unthinkable that the German people can bear the existing conditions for an indefinite period. People now say quite frankly that if the air offensive is further intensified, a way out must be found. There can, however, be no thought of a revolution. The Gestapo and the SS are too powerful for the whole German people to dare to rise up against the National-Socialist system."

It is obvious that the air offensive has been tremendously intensified. And as we attack in growing strength, the Gestapo and the SS surely are finding that their job is also tremendously intensified. First of all there are the physical difficulties. Each attack adds thousands to the dazed and weary homeless, deprives sections of a city of light, gas and water, disrupts transportation.

But there must also be a weakening of morale. Each allied plane over Berlin is another harbinger of German defeat. Each explosion echoes the ever emptier ring of party boasts and promises.

As late as January, the Swiss writer says, the faithful Nazis were boasting that Berlin could never be attacked by day. But the daylight raids came, and party prestige must have fallen even more.

Against fear, discouragement and weariness, Hitler's brutish police are fighting a grim battle, but a losing one. They are still strong, but we are stronger.

Even the Gestapo's guns cannot delay forever the German people's desperate search for "a way out."

Infections from Swimming

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
THE DAYS of the old swimming hole are nearly here and with them the days of sinus infection and infected ears in children, says my nose and throat specialist. The old swimming hole is now magnified in most of our cities, towns and villages into the municipal swimming pool or Y. M.C.A. swimming pool with tiled bottom and sides and diving boards and none of the dangers of slippery mud banks or concealed tree trunks or snapping turtles, or poison ivy or snakes. It is a great improvement all right and I don't want to be a kill joy but without precautions there is danger of nasal infections and consequent ear infections from prolonged and under water swimming pool aquatics.

It may come as a complete surprise to you but if you think about it a little you'll see that it is true that human beings were never meant for an underwater existence. This is not entirely to say that they are not fishes, because lots of warm-blooded and air-breathing animals spend a lot of time under water. But such, like the hippopotamus and the porpoise and the manatee and the pelican, were canny enough to get it fixed up with Mother Nature that water doesn't enter their noses or ears.

The pelican, for instance, has no external opening to the nose at all, so that when their beaks are closed, as they are when diving, no water gets into the upper respiratory passages. If you go up real close to a hippopotamus (I get this second hand) you will find that while he has very large nostrils he has a membrane that he can close over them and the nose and throat specialists to the hippopotami tell me he does close them whenever he submerges. So also manatees, seals and alligators. Although the porpoise spends his entire life in the water its nasal mucous membrane is little better adapted than man's to contact with sea water.

Again the mucous membrane of the nose is constantly covered with a blanket of mucus which is also protective and which sea water especially but also fresh water strips off without courtesy. This blanket of mucus is somewhat higher in salt than blood and lymph and tissue so Dr. Martin H. Fischer has found that a salt solution somewhat more hypertonic than normal salt solution is a better nasal irrigator and protector of infection. He recommends a hypertonic Ringer's solution as best of all (Ringer's solution—sodium chloride, potassium chloride, calcium chloride, sodium bicarbonate, monosodium phosphate and dextrose—any druggist can make it up.)

The youngster who is going in for prolonged diving and under water swimming should try to protect the external nose openings from the entrance of water. Also the external ear drum should not be swimming at all. A slightly acid ointment (such as Epsomoin ointment with ephedrine) applied to the inside of the nose before and after swimming may help to avert trouble.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN
©1943 LITTLE BROWN CO. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE

SYNOPSIS
Incognito as "Ellery Smith," Mr. Queen is visiting war industrial Wrightsville to write a novel. He leased a house from John F. Wright, a banker, which had been designed by the latter and his wife, Hermione, as a honeymoon home for their eldest daughter, Nora. Her fiancé, James Haight, had disappeared on the eve of the wedding. Her sister, Lola, lives apart from the family. The youngest Miss Wright, Patricia, is "going with" the county prosecutor, Carter Bradford. Suddenly "Jim" Haight reappeared and soon he and Nora are married. At the wedding, Ellery saw Frank Lloyd, Nora's former suitor, skulking behind a weeping willow. Before the honeymooning Hights returned, Ellery moved to the Wright home next door, and resumed his novel, thinking the supposed "Calamity House" jinx has been laid. He called on Nora, who, with "Pat's" help, was installing books on a shelf, when three envelopes fell from a volume. Nora paled as she read the enclosures; then fainted when her husband entered, frightening her in his Halloween mask. Later, "Pat" surprised the author hunting for those letters and calls him "Ellery Queen." They found the letters in Nora's hat box, the three addressed to Miss Rosemary Haight, "Jim's" sister, and dated in red crayon: 11/28, 12/25, and 1/1. The letters are ominous. The book from which they had fallen originally is one on toxicology; a passage on arsenic is marked in red. Ellery asks "Pat" to keep a secret watch on Nora and "Jim." Outside, "Carter" Bradford suddenly looms in the darkness before Ellery and "Pat," and is denouncing the latter.

CHAPTER TWELVE
"You lied to me!" rasped Carter. He materialized: no hat, and his chestnut hair angry. "Don't hide in a bush, Pat!"
"I'm not hiding," declared Pat, "and it isn't a bush, it's a tree." She came out of the darkness, too; and they faced each other.
"You told me over the phone that you had a headache!"
"Yes."
"You said you were going to bed!"
"I am."
"Don't quibble!"
"Why not? You raise such unimportant points, Attorney Bradford!" Carter's voice cracked. "You lied to get rid of me. You didn't want me around. You had a date with this scurrier! Don't deny it!"
"I do deny it. I didn't have a date with Ellery."
"That," remarked Mr. Queen from his observation post, "happens to be the truth."
"Don't you butt in, Smith!" shouted Carter. "I'm trying to keep my temper!"
Mr. "Smith" grinned and held his peace.
"You don't have to be a sneak, Pat! If you don't want me, say so," blazed Carter.
"This has nothing to do with my wanting you or not wanting you," said Pat.
"Well, do you or don't you?"
Pat's eyes fell. "You've no right to ask me that—here—now."
"All right! Have it your way!" "Carter..."
His voice came back in a bellow of defiance. "I'm through!"
Pat ran off toward the big white house. Thought Mr. Queen as he watched her slim figure race across the lawn: In a way it's better... much better. You don't know what you're in for. And—
Prosecutor Carter Bradford may very well be an enemy, later on.

When Ellery returned from his pre-breakfast walk the next morning, he found Nora and her mother whispering on the Wright porch.

"Good morning!" he greeted cheerfully. "Enjoy the lecture last night?"
"It was interesting," Nora looked distressed, and Hermione preoccupied, so Ellery began to go into the house.
"Mr. Smith," said Hermie. "Oh, dear, I don't know how to say it! Nora dear—"
"What happened here last night?" asked Nora.
"Happened?" Ellery looked blank. "I mean with Pat and Carter. You were home—"
"Is anything wrong?" asked Ellery quickly.
"Of course there is. Pat won't come down to breakfast. She won't answer any questions. And when Pat sulks—"
"It's Carter's fault," Hermie burst out. "I thought there was something queer about her 'headache' last night! Please, Mr. Smith, if you know anything about it—if something happened after we went to Town Hall last night which her mother ought to know—"
"Has Pat broken off with Carter?" asked Nora anxiously. "No, you don't have to answer. Mother, you'll simply have to give Patty a talking-to. She can't keep doing this sort of thing to Carter."
Ellery walked Nora back to the little house. As soon as they were out of earshot of Mrs. Wright, Nora said: "Of course you had something to do with it."
"I?" parried Mr. Queen.
"Well... don't you agree Pat's in love with Carter? I'm sure you could help by not making him jealous—"
"Mr. Bradford," said Mr. Queen, "would be jealous of you."
"I know. He's so hotheaded, too! Oh, dear," Nora sighed. "I'm making a mess of this. Will you forgive me? And come in to breakfast?"
"Yes to both questions." And as he helped Nora up the porch steps, he wondered just how guilty he really was.

Jim was full of political talk, and Nora... she was wonderful. No other word for it, thought Ellery. Watching and listening, he could detect no least tinkle of falsity. It was a temptation to dismiss the letter incident of the previous evening as fantasy.

Pat arrived, with Alberta and eggs, in a rush.
"Nora! How nice," she said, as if nothing at all had happened. "Morning, Jim! Ellery! I just felt the impulse to look in on the lovebirds..."
"Jim stared. 'Lo, Patso?" He grinned. "Say, you are grown-up! Let me look. Yep. A real glamour girl! Smith, I envy you. If I were a bachelor..."
Ellery saw the swift cloud darken Nora's face. She pressed more coffee on her husband.

Pat kept chattering. She wasn't a very good actress—couldn't look Jim in the eye. But Nora was superb. Yes, Pat had been right. Nora had decided not to think about the letters or their horrible implications. And she was using the minor crisis of Pat and Carter to help her not to think.

Nora left the dining room to join Alberta in the kitchen.
"That Nora," chuckled Jim. "She's—Say! What time is it? I'll be late at the bank. Nora! He shouted. 'Didn't the mail come yet?'"
"Not yet!" Nora called from the kitchen as Jim observed, "Ah! There's Bailey now. 'Scuse!"
Jim hurried out to the foyer to answer the postman's ring. They heard him open the front door and his slow returning steps while he was shuffling through the mail.

Then they saw him staring at one of the several envelopes the postman had just delivered. His face was livid. Suddenly he vaulted upstairs. They heard his feet pound on the carpeting, a moment later a door bang.

Pat was gaping at the spot Jim had just vacated.
Ellery got up and walked without noise to the foot of the staircase. After a moment he returned to the breakfast table.
"He's in his study, I think. Heard him lock the door... Here's Nora." "Where's Jim?" asked Nora as she set the eggs down.
"Upstairs," answered Ellery. "Jim?" she called.
"Yes, Nora." Jim reappeared on the stairs, pale but rigidly controlled. He had his coat on, and carried several unopened letters of assorted sizes.
"Jim! Is anything wrong?"
"Wrong?" he laughed. "I never saw such a suspicious woman! What should be wrong?"
"I don't know. But you look so pale—"
Jim kissed her. "You ought to've been a nurse! Well, got to be going. Oh, by the way, here's the mail. The usual junk. Bye, Patty! Smith! See you soon." Jim raced out.

After breakfast, Ellery said something about strolling in the woods behind the house and excused himself.

A half hour later Pat joined him. She came hurrying through the underbrush, looking for him over her shoulder as if someone were chasing her.
"I thought I'd never get away from Nora," Pat panted. She dropped to a stump. "Who!"
Ellery blew smoke thoughtfully. "Pat, we've got to read that letter Jim just received. It stirred him tremendously. Somehow this morning's letter ties in with the rest of this puzzle. Can you lure Nora out of the house?"
"She's going to High Village this morning to do some shopping. There's the station wagon!"
Pat kicked a twig. Then she sprang off the stump. "I feel awful spying on her," she moaned. "But what else can we do?"
"Why don't I'll find anything," said Ellery. "Pat, let her swim in Nora's house with her duplicate key. 'Jim locked the door when he ran upstairs. He didn't want to be caught doing... whatever it was he did.'"
In Jim's study, Pat set her back against the door. She looked ill. The author-detective sniffed. And went directly to the fireplace. It was clean except for a small mound of ash.

"He burned it!" said Pat. "But not thoroughly enough." "Ellery, you've found something!"
"A scrap that wasn't consumed by the fire."
Pat flew across the room. Ellery was examining a scrap of charred paper carefully.

"Part of an envelope?"
"The flap. Return address. But the address has been burned off. Only thing left is the sender's name."
Pat read: "Rosemary Haight." Her eyes widened. "Jim's sister Rosemary! The one he wrote those three letters to about Nora!"
"It's possible that—" Ellery did not finish.

"You were going to say it's possible there was a first letter we didn't find, because he'd already sent it! And that this is the remains of his sister's answer."
"Yes," Ellery tucked the burnt scrap away in his wallet. "But on second thought I'm not so sure. Why should his sister's reply bother him so much? That's what it is! No, Patty, this is something different, something new."
"But what?"
"That," said Mr. Queen, "is what we've got to find out. He took her arm, looking about. 'Let's get out of here.'"

What It Means... Sweden's Neutrality

By JAMES D. WHITE
WASHINGTON — The pride with which the Swedes look upon their 131 years of peace is equalled only by their determination to stay out of war. But the way of the neutral in this war is not easy, especially when you are a neutral so situated that you are the hole in a Nazi doughnut.

Sweden's basic trouble is that she is surrounded. At any time German bombers could wreck Stockholm and other Swedish cities.

Only Switzerland is more hemmed in. Sweden is ringed by Nazi-occupied Denmark on the west and north Germany's ally, Finland, and the Baltic states on the east, and by Germany itself, on the south.

Since the beginning of this, the second world war the Swedes have stayed out of, they have made it plain they would fight to defend their own territory if invaded, but only then. They are better able to do this now than in 1939.

Most Swedes have relatives in this country, and emotionally most incline to the Allies. But geography and Nazi bombers dictated a policy of the sternest neutrality.

RECEIVED IN THE U. S. through neutral channels, this picture is the first to show the flying tank-buster recently put into use on the Eastern front by the Germans. The idea of mounting a powerful anti-tank gun on a plane was introduced by the Russians. (International)

Washington at a Glance By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — There are a few differences of opinion on the new secretary of the Navy that might well be worth sticking away in the back of your head at this point.

One is that his days of "reticence" and "passion for obscurity" may be over.

The second is that some brass hats in the Navy probably aren't as happy about the appointment as my recent column reported almost every one else was.

James V. Forrestal rose to prominence, wealth and power in Wall street, where silence is considered golden. When the President called him to Washington as one of those young men with "a passion for anonymity," it was no great strain for "Jimmy" Forrestal to keep his mouth shut. When he was elevated to under secretary of the Navy, he had a boss, the late Frank Knox, who liked to make his own announcements.

Forrestal knew the value of silence. It was the kind of silence that made much headway with his bosses. But, say those close to him, those days are gone forever.

As secretary of the Navy he will have to make public pronouncements from time to time. If he follows the precedent set by Knox and the President, he will hold weekly press conferences.

This doesn't mean that Sec. Forrestal is expected to become voluble. If his statements before Congressional committees are any criterion, his press announcements will be as concise and staccato as communiques from the front.

Forrestal knows his Navy. Aside from being in it in World War I, he had been under secretary nearly four years.

No sooner had his appointment been announced than Navy men were thanking their lucky stars that they wouldn't have to "break in" a landlubber in the midst of war.

Their prayers of thanks are not unmixed with the hope that the new secretary won't be too tough. As under secretary, Forrestal tapped the noggin under a few brass hats on several occasions. Because he does know his Navy and because he's a two-fisted, realistic business man, he won't stand any foolishness.

Most gold-braiders respect him for it, because his devotion to the Navy has been demonstrated numerous times, but there are die-hards who would rather have more freedom, especially when traditions are being tossed out the porthole for more modern ways of doing things.

So far as blue prints and projections go, our all-oceans Navy is already built or on paper. The two problems now are to keep it ahead in the race to meet the exigencies of changing warfare (whole fleets of plane carriers, for example, were only a dream a few years ago), and to see that it isn't sabotaged after the war.

Navy men tell me that there are few men in government doing more post-war thinking today than Forrestal. If he continues to be a cabinet member in peacetime, the future of the Navy may well be in Forrestal's hands, and you can bet he will be fighting all the way.

More Than 1,000 See Matinee Races Here

The old grandstand at the Fayette County Fairground reverberated to the excited yells of well over 1,000 men and women Memorial Day as the trotters and pacers pounded down the home stretch in the holiday matinee race program put on by the Lions Club and Fair Board to provide close-to-home entertainment and raise money for the Lions Club Canteen for servicemen at the Union Bus Station here.

Although the horsemen turned their racers for the word from Dr. H. M. (Doc) Parshall, who lent his services as starter for the benefit affair, without hope of cash reward, there was not one in the crowd who did not feel that they raced as hard for glory and the merchandise awards as they would have for a purse.

The turnout admittedly was bigger than even the most optimistic of the sponsoring groups had hoped for.

Sports Pack 'Em in on Holiday

By TED MEIER
NEW YORK, May 31.—(P)—Nearly a million sports hungry fans—917,973—jammed race tracks and ball parks during the three-day Memorial Day holiday.

Over the same span unofficial figures showed attendance of 466,272 at the 12 race tracks now operating. They tossed more than $22,234,311 into the pari-mutuel machines, a merry clip that set betting marks at Suffolk Downs, Hawthorne, Delaware Park, Bay Meadows, Charleston, North Randall and Beulah.

The expected first $4,000,000-betting day at Belmont Park did not materialize, but that track's 52,029 turnout set an attendance record. The Belmont throng wagered $3,559,097 of the record $10,326,027 bet by 247,556 at all tracks yesterday.

$36,000 MISTAKE AT BEULAH BUT, OTHERWISE, IT WAS BIG DAY FOR TRACK AND SPORT

COLUMBUS, May 31.—(P)—Beulah Park, closing its 21-day spring racing meeting, had a record-breaking attendance and mutuel handle yesterday but the management didn't have any too much to cheer about.

An employee posted the wrong odds on the horse that won the seventh race and his error cost the track an estimated $36,000, a Beulah spokesman said.

The odds board showed 3 to 5 on Sis Wagner when they should have been reversed.

RED BIRDS BREAK EVEN IN 2 GAMES

By JACK HAND
(By the Associated Press)
Baseball passed the quarter pole today in stable condition with 160,020 holiday admissions in the cash box, and the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals still the teams to beat.

Cincinnati and the St. Louis Browns loomed as the leading contenders after yesterday's flood of doubleheaders featured by 23 home runs. The Reds trailed Billy Southworth's Cards by two games and a half, and the Browns closed within a half game of the world champions.

Master Melvin Ott of the New York Giants led the home run parade with three, upping his total to 10, as New York trimmed Chicago twice, 6-5 and 5-4.

Whitey Kurowski belted his seventh and eighth round trip-pers as the Cards rallied to whip Boston in the second game, 13-3, after bowing to Nate Andrews in the first, 1-0, on Tommy Holmes' homer.

—Spying— On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.
NEW YORK, May 31.—(P)—Baseball is about to move into India, and we assume that will lend a new meaning to the "untouchables"—They'll become umpires. . . Ensign Al Horwitz, who used to work with Ray Dumont in the National Baseball Congress, has discovered that a wealthy Indian, Ezra Gabbay, has become so interested in baseball that he wants to sponsor a national championship. . . Dumont is awaiting a signed agreement to name Gabbay as India's semi-pro commissioner—and what better name could you get for the job? . . . Babe Diridrickson, whose husband, George Zaharias, has just bought into the San Diego franchise in Bill Freelee's pro football league, is determined to become the world's best woman tennis player. If she succeeds, the footballers likely will take to the hills before Babe tries another game.

A Rookie A Day
Edwin Carnett, White Sox outfielder, a versatile ball player and a 300 hitter, what more could you ask? Ed broke in as a pro at Ponca City, Okla., in 1934 and worked his way up to Seattle last season as a pitcher-outfielder. Settled down to outfielding and was drafted by the White Sox, who didn't give him a tumble until mid-day. They began to show improvement when Ed went in as a regular. Now, with Hal Trosky out, Carnett is serving as first baseman. Carnett once belonged to the Cubs and Graves who probably wish they still had him.

Milwaukee's Dick Hearn, whose pitching duties are confined to relief roles, starred in his specialty yesterday and finished his day's activities with two victories to his credit. He hurled the final two nines in the first game and earned a win when the Brewers rallied for three runs in the ninth to edge out a 7 to 6 triumph over the seventh-place Blues. In the second encounter he relieved Bob Bowman and was on the mound for four innings before giving way to Charley Gassaway, but he earned credit for the 6 to 5 Brewer 7-inning victory.

Last place Indianapolis was unable to stem a ninth inning Louisville rally and the Colonels scored five runs to sweep the twin bill, winning the abbreviated opener 7 to 3 and the nightcap by a 9 to 8 margin. The Colonels now have won 13 of their last 16 games.

Jesse Owens Back; Will Race Girl

CHICAGO, May 31.—(P)—Two winners of track events at the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin—Jesse Owens and Helen Stephens—will engage in a 100-yard race Sunday at Wrigley Field.

Home teams were winners in the Minneapolis-St. Paul encounters, the Millers copping the morning game in Nicollet Park, 5 to 2, while the Saints put on a 12 to 8 winning show for the home fans in the afternoon contest in Lexington Park.

Tribute Paid To Honored Dead In Services Here

FLOWERS LAID ON GRAVES OF ALL CEMETERIES

In Washington C. H., Parade Of Patriotic Groups Starts Ceremonies

An impressive tribute in oratory, music and flowers was paid to Fayette County's war dead in a series of Memorial Day services throughout the community, where flowers were strewn for the brave men who followed the colors in most of the seven major wars that America has fought.

Most business was at a standstill throughout Tuesday—the day set apart to pay homage to the nation's war dead. Attendance at the services was not as great as usual, due in part to so many being engaged in war plants which were not closed, and in farming, where every hour counts toward producing food to feed the armed forces as well as civilians.

The parade formed on Main and Market streets, moved west on Market Street to Hinde, thence to Court Street, and east on Court Street to Washington Avenue and to the cemetery.

The parade was made up with post commanders and adjutants of the veteran organizations in the lead, followed by the color guard members of the veteran auxiliaries, Company D of the Ohio State Guard, High School Band, firing squad, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts, Disabled American Veterans, and automobiles.

Col. Rell G. Allen was marshal of the day, and Herbert Wilson, commander of Paul H. Hughey Post, presided at the services held at the Washington C. H. Cemetery.

The High School Band played several patriotic numbers at the cemetery, where the services were conducted about the cenotaph, and beautiful wreaths placed about the cemetery honoring the dead of all wars.

Miss Janice Murray read Lincoln's famous Gettysburg address and Robert M. Jefferson, past commander of Paul H. Hughey Post, read Logan's general order.

Judge Frank S. Bonham of the Hamilton County Probate Court, delivered a very interesting memorial address, in which he paid tribute to the war dead and the men who are now fighting the battle of humanity, and declared that the peace must be a lasting one and one which will guarantee that the children of today will not be the soldiers in another war a few years hence.

Judge Bonham praised his home community and the people in this community, and said that "nobody ever won a war," and spoke of the tremendous cost of the present conflict, in lives, property and money, which will be felt for generations to come.

He declared that the present war must seem inconsistent to a great many American youth, who had been brought up and taught not to hate and not to fight, and that today they were being taught to fight and to hate—a thing which he said is absolutely necessary to win the war for civilization.

Judge Bonham also mentioned that America has fought six major wars and is now engaged in the seventh and greatest of them all, and that in each instance the battle was for the right and preservation of the principles of Christianity and civilization.

He said the debt of gratitude we owe to the men who were enrolled under the colors of the various wars, and who are now fighting under the Stars and Stripes, can never be paid.

Digressing somewhat, Judge Bonham mentioned that parents owe it to their children to set a proper example in civilian life, and that too many parents are just letting their children grow up, with the result that juvenile delinquency is increasing.

"We should call the parents delinquent instead of saying their children are delinquent," Judge Bonham declared.

TUESDAY WAS HOTTEST DAY

Mercury Reaches 96 for Season's Record

Tuesday, Memorial Day, brought the highest temperature of the season, with an official reading of 96 degrees during the afternoon and readings in the sun that ran as high as 110 degrees, unofficial recordings.

The range during the day was from 54 during the morning to the peak in the afternoon, or 42 degrees.

The temperature remained high during the night, and at 8 A.M. Wednesday the reading was 79.

As the day advanced, however, the sky became overcast and the mercury halted, temporarily at least, in the 80's.

Tuesday's reading made the day one of the hottest May 29ths on record here.

HOLIDAY IS SPENT WORKING IN FIELDS

Farmers Take Advantage of Good Weather

Most Fayette County farmers spent Memorial Day working in their fields.

It was no holiday on the farm, for plowing, planting and cutting alfalfa, as well as other farm work, occupied their attention, and they are making every hour count to keep up with the program of increased production, even though workmen are harder to obtain than they were last year.

Tuesday was also a wonderful "growing" day, with the mercury high and most of the county well supplied with moisture from recent rains.

claring it was impossible for her to fulfill the requirements of the Versailles treaty in the first World War, and how she spent huge sums after that to build up the most powerful fighting machine in the world to open the second World War, were mentioned by Judge Bonham.

In conclusion he said that the peace to come must be a lasting one, with guarantees that no dictator can ever launch another world conflict.

After the ceremonies had been completed at the Washington C. H. Cemetery, the march back to the city was made, bringing to a conclusion the Memorial Day observance here.

CINCINNATIANS INTERESTED IN LAKE PROPOSAL

Rocky Fork Project Still Drawing Attention In Highland

Another group of prominent Cincinnatians visited the proposed dam and lake site on Rocky Fork Creek in Highland County this week.

Mayor James Stewart, Republican nominee for governor, was included in the group from Cincinnati that inspected the scene and showed deep interest in the project to throw a big dam across Rocky Fork Creek and create a lake along the stream for many miles.

The Business Men's Association of Hillsboro, headed by Ben Vance, and the committee named to promote the lake project, conferred with the Cincinnatians for some time.

The proposed dam and lake are post-war projects which are meant for water conservation, providing more adequate fishing waters in that part of Ohio, and establishing a recreation center which would extend along the stream for many miles.

Influential Highland countians are back of the project and have interested the Conservation Department and other departments in the project.

The proposal in Highland County brings to mind in Fayette County that a dam across Paint Creek, at Rock Mills or near there, would provide an ideal recreation center, with good fishing and help maintain the water table in this community.

Conservation officials are inclined to the belief that sooner or later dams across streams in this area may be necessary before a great many years, as a conservation measure to keep the water table sufficiently high to provide water for the community.

COMPANY D MAKES GOOD APPEARANCE

Good Training Reflected in Guard Personnel

Company D, Ohio State Guard, under command of Captain Virgil Sexton, presented a good appearance when it took part in the Memorial Day services here Tuesday forenoon.

The personnel of Company D reflected the splendid training given them, and while the company contains many new recruits, their response to orders and appearance generally was that of veterans.

The company brought forth much favorable comment from citizens who had never seen the company in uniform and together.

RED CROSS UNIT IS TO REOPEN ON THURSDAY

123,000 Dressings Quota for Summer: More Workers Are Needed Urgently

The Red Cross surgical dressing unit in Memorial Hall will begin to hum again Thursday afternoon—hum with a start on the 123,000 dressings assigned to Washington C. H. for the next three months.

Mrs. Martha Braun, instructress, said it was necessary that work on the thousands of dressings begin immediately. "We will need many workers, too," she added, urging those women who were "regulars" this winter to come again this summer, as many afternoons as possible.

College girls home for the summer months—in fact, anyone who can spare three hours during the day, is needed, it is pointed out. Hours Monday through Friday are 1 to 4 P. M. with a special session on Monday from 7 to 10 P. M. for women who work during the day and can't come in the afternoon.

The 123,000 dressings are two sizes—four by four and two by two inches. Both sizes are comparatively small and each dressing represents a lot of painstaking folding. After a respite of over a month, however, it is hoped the unit will be full of women for each session.
